

Julien Akwa is a versatile, multi-style dancer with a strong foundation in hip hop, krump, breaking, popping, and more. His teaching style is welcoming, intentional, and rooted in personal growth—making his classes especially supportive for beginner dancers who are ready to build confidence from the ground up.

Julien's classes emphasize fundamentals and technique while incorporating drills that encourage students to explore their own movement quality, personal style, and emotional expression. His approach goes beyond teaching choreography; he strives to help dancers understand their bodies, refine their individuality, and develop an authentic presence within their movement.

Julien brings real-world performance and battle experience into every class. His performance credits include appearances at Emume with Afrocontibo, the RAW Artists Showcase with TCDC, an Energy Clothing Brand fashion showcase, and events at The Armory. He has also danced on major stages such as the Target Center during the NCAA Final Four and competed in battles with Fusion Concepts in Atlanta.

Julien's love of teaching shows in his fun, welcoming, and engaging style. He aims to help every student leave feeling confident, empowered, and supported, equipped with practical tools, clear fundamentals, and inspiration to continue growing in both their movement and personal expression.
